WHEN VOLUNTEER PARENTS VISITS INDIA

On November we had a surprise visit from Germany it was our very own Mysore Public school Volunteer Louis's father visited Bengaluru on a business trip. During that period he also visited Mysore .

Our mentor Prithvi visited him at the hotel, briefly discussed about voluntary work and most importantly he has briefed him about Louis health because he was sick due to viral infection.

At present Mr.Louis is perfectly fine travelling in Goa with other volunteers.

International Volunteers Day

The International Volunteer Day for Economic and Social Development (5 December), usually said as International Volunteer Day (IVD), is an international observance mandated by the UN General Assembly in 1985. It offers a chance for volunteer-involving organizations and individual volunteers involving volunteerism, encourage governments to support volunteer efforts, and acknowledge volunteer contributions to the action of the Sustainable Development Goals(SDGs) at local, national, and international levels.

In India Mysore Public School Principal honoured our volunteers in association with Inter Culture Dialogue & Exchange India, and wished the volunteers on international volunteers Day

CHRISTMAS IN INDIA

The vibe begins

The world has witnessed that India celebrates Christmas with a lot of fervor and reverts the festive spirit of love, forgiveness, and togetherness. However, every state in the country has given the magnificent celebration its own flavor making India an epitome of the famous adage 'Unity in Diversity'.

Food, glorious food. Christmas in India is all about eating! International luxury hotels serve up vast Christmas buffets with all the favorites: roast meat (including turkey), roast vegetables, and deserts to die for. Most hotels in India will hold a special Christmas dinner of some description, but it may have more of an Indian flavor to it.

We at Bengaluru Mr Robinson Doss the chairperson hosted Christmas dinner for all the volunteers. It was one fabulous evening to begin with light music performances by volunteers then followed by Karaoke and to end with cake and wine and most importantly the sumptuous Christmas dinner.

And the vibe continues

MERRY CHRISTMAS & HAPPY NEW YEAR
